

A voyage among the treasures of the country along the paths of culture. On Saturday the 27th and Sunday the 28th of September 2008 Italy will take part in the European Heritage Days, with the free opening of an additional 1250 cultural sites. This event is sponsored by the European Council, which since 1991 has been introducing artistic, historic and natural monuments to the whole population.

This is a very important event at the international level, since it has been made possible thanks to the collaboration of the 49 member States of the European Cultural Convention, and also because of its highly cohesive and cultural connotation.

In Italy it was possible thanks to the partnership with the Ministry for Cultural Goods and Assets, FAI and Autostrade per l'Italia (Italian Motorway Company), who have worked together to identify the most suitable places.

Collezione maramotti welcomed the invitation and arranged for extended hours and guided visits to the permanent collection, with reservations accepted by telephone or by email.
